

James F. Troendle, Ph.D., is a mathematical statistician in the Office of Biostatistics Research (OBR) in the Division of Cardiovascular Sciences at the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute (NHLBI). His particular interests are methods of multiple comparison adjustment, clinical trial methodology, and time-to-event analyses. He received his Ph.D. in mathematical statistics from the University of Maryland College Park.